Course Information:

This CPD-accredited training has been developed to support practitioners who are working with or wish to work with NVR Parent Groups, either online or in-person. It will explore new and innovative ways to deliver NVR Groups. Instead of following a standard manualised programme / script, each participant is offered the resources, tools, and time to develop their own NVR Group, custom-fit to meet the specific needs of their organisation.

Establishing a bespoke group delivery enables the service users to experience the most 'therapeutic' effects of NVR. Practitioners create and develop ways to help coach parents in meeting the challenges they face and utilising their own resources and building their own support networks along the way.

Participants will learn to apply the principles of NVR in a group setting, use this environment to improve caregivers' confidence and how they can gain strength from the group processes to support their competency in resisting any harmful child behaviour long after the group work has ceased.

Participants will consider how to integrate both group and individual sessions by facilitating with the caregivers: Supporter's Meetings, School meetings, and Sibling meetings.

The group sessions will support caregivers to learn how to manage 'setbacks' and reduce conflict returning.

Eligibility:

Training is open to practitioners in CAMHS, mental health, social care, education, youth justice and the independent sector, who have completed their NVR Foundation Level (NVRA Level 1).

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of the training, participants will have been supported to:

- Design their own individual NVR group supporting their service / authority's outcome measures / timeframes.
- Explore new ways of facilitating groups using the hybrid format.
- Maximise and embed practitioner knowledge of NVR.
- Achieve the best outcomes for families by adapting the group process to their clients' specific needs.

All of our training is also available in-house, please contact us via our website or email for further details on: training@partnershipprojectsuk.com
